The high-flying 2005 Keep Playing Sports men's basketball league came to a close on December 17, 2005 in Las Vegas, NV. The final chapter in the inaugural season of this ultra-competitive league ended with a National Finals Tournament in Sin City. The tournament was filled with teams from across the country that won their respective region.

To reach the KPS National Finals in Las Vegas, each team had to compete over an 8 week season against the best basketball teams in their region. The prize for winning each region was a trip to Las Vegas to compete in the National Tournament which included, team airfare and lodging at the Sahara on the Las Vegas strip.

The KPS National Finals Tournament filled a day with non-stop KPS basketball action, with Carl's Place, representing Des Moines, IA taking the crown to become the first KPS National Basketball Champions!

Teams are now back in their respective regions gearing up for the upcoming KPS Basketball Season, set to start in mid-April. Next season promises more competitive teams with the same great benefits that KPS provided its talented teams from around the country.
